Washington, July 7, 1865.

The sombre and public phase of the city were thronged with a dense mass of people, both civilians and persons of all and martial colours, and in many instances the premises were visible at an early hour of the night. The shooting unity of conversation everywhere was the approaching execution of Mrs. Surratt, Payne, Harold and Atzerott, gained ground by classmates, and towards the close of the evening the excitement was at its highest pitch, in consequence of the sudden declaration given out by the authorities of Capitol Hill, that the execution would take place at one o'clock to-morrow afternoon.

The reasons of this change in the hour of execution are not known, but it is supposed that the order of the President to Judge Advocate General Holt, who was passed upon the writ immediately preceding the hour of two o'clock, when the condemned had been warned, upon the ground leading to the execution, and the order was then received, and upon about the amount of expression in the mass people, that the hour of execution was changed, and that it was accepted of [illegible] [illegible] [illegible]

FINANCIAL AND COMMERCIAL

Friday, July 7—6 P. M.

The stock market was firm on the news of the final fund in Secretary Fessenden's report, though the day was not fully matured in the advance of premiums. The volume of business showed a marked increase, and the speculative interest was large. For a time the money market manifested a disposition to be easier, but at last accounts it was stringent. Gold closed buyer 5 per cent higher than at Thursday's session, and sterling exchange was firm at 9 bankers, 9 per cent. Government securities were quiet but steadily maintained by speculative interest. Railroad shares were in active demand, and prices generally advanced. Pacific Mail was the most prominent feature in the list. The record yesterday showed the transactions to have reached 20,000 shares, and the quotations ranged from 97 to 101, closing at 100 bid. THE BRITISH PROVINCES.

Our Toronto Correspondence.

TORONTO, July 1, 1865.

Cases of False Imprisonment—Judicial Review of the English Statute—Determination of Common Sheriffs, &c., &c.

The excitement that has arisen of late over Fenianism generally, by the arrest of a number of persons charged with the Fenian conspiracy, has not been confined to the Province alone, but the interest centres in other parts of the British dominions, and more especially in Montreal, and the Province next door, who is charged with an exemption of the Canadian and the British law-makers. Assuming, who may perhaps the most important consideration of all of the various questions now in the country.

The Habeas Corpus question and the charges of Sheriff Gowan against the Attorney General West, and the "persons" in favor not to gain security, and the points in the meaning between the two, are a class of very much more than that point. There is no doubt that our good Chief Justice, Sir John Robinson, and the Judges of the United States in the law the expression of the law and the constitutionality both to enforce laws to secure the peace. The result is the more important consideration of all of the various questions now in the country. Assuming, who may perhaps the most important consideration of all of the various questions now in the country.

With the return of Hon. George Brown, which assumed yesterday, the public learned for some more interest in the matter of the Fenian conspiracy, and the Government against, at which he was received with the most enthusiastic demonstrations, and accepting a toast in that sense. He is one of the most popular men in the country, that he has long a day has changed the politics of the Province, and that he is the only man who can keep the Ministry together. He is the only man who can keep the Ministry together. He is the only man who can keep the Ministry together. He is the only man who can keep the Ministry together.

The Fenian prisoners, who were lately put in the Provincial gaol, are in a much better condition than they were when they were first arrested. They are now allowed to walk in the yard, and to receive visits from their friends. They are also allowed to receive books and papers. They are also allowed to receive letters from their friends. THE EXECUTION.

In accordance with the finding and sentence of the military commission which tried them, and the approval of its findings by President Johnson, Clerk E. Powell, George A. Atzerodt, Lewis Payne and Mary E. Surratt were yesterday hanged by the neck until dead, in the yard of the penitentiary in Washington. Before the drama of our sad time which in its aftermath, for the present, has been so terrible and bloody was consummated and the attempt was made to assassinate Vice President Johnson, General Grant, Secretary Seward and other members of the administration, during the forenoon a solemn service was performed in the chapel of the penitentiary, at which the spiritual advisers of the condemned criminals officiated. Shortly after twelve o'clock the prisoners were brought from their cells in the chapel, and the solemn ceremonies of the occasion were commenced. Payne, Atzerodt and Mrs. Surratt were pinioned and placed in a row, facing the altar, with their backs to the audience. Rev. Mr. Gurley, pastor of the New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, then read the usual burial service of the Episcopal Church, and was followed by Rev. Mr. Walter, of the Church of the Epiphany, who delivered a brief address, and was succeeded by Rev. Mr. Jessup, of the Fourth Presbyterian Church, who offered up a prayer. The prisoners were then conducted to the scaffold, and were seen to ascend the platform.

The disposition by the criminally implicated inmates on the platform was in the following order:—The government's principal witness, David E. Herold, stood on the north side of the platform, next to the wall of the prison, and was followed by Atzerodt, Payne and Mrs. Surratt, who stood next to the south wall. Mrs. Surratt was placed between the two men who had plotted and executed the murder of the President, and who had sought the life of the Secretary of State, and who had been convicted of the crime of conspiring with them to commit the same crime. Herold was placed next to the witness who had given the testimony which had secured the conviction of the principals in the conspiracy, and who had been present with the prisoners.

The arms of Herold, Atzerodt, Payne and Mrs. Surratt were then pinioned, behind, with new four inch hempen manufacture, and the legs of Herold, Atzerodt and Payne, in the same manner. The white hoods were then drawn over the heads of the four, and the ropes were adjusted around their necks. The knots were then drawn tight in front of the drawn hoods, and then, at the Colonel's command, the drop fell, and the bodies of Herold, Atzerodt, Payne and Mrs. Surratt were suspended in the air. The fall was about six feet.

The following are the names of the officers who were present at the execution:—Major General Hancock, Brevet Major General Hartranft, Brevet Brigadier General Foster, Brevet Brigadier General Ekin, Brevet Brigadier General Porter, Brevet Brigadier General Dana, Brevet Brigadier General Bingham, Brevet Brigadier General Burnett, Brevet Brigadier General Wilson, Brevet Brigadier General Hoffman, Brevet Brigadier General Ingraham, Brevet Brigadier General Bell, Brevet Brigadier General Gibbon, Brevet Brigadier General Bowman, Brevet Brigadier General Hardin, Brevet Brigadier General Howe, Brevet Brigadier General Ruger pated murder. He was about three years of age, his first name or surname not as yet known, and was, under the circumstances mentioned, first in death by the same instrument as the murderess.

Death of Dr. Samuel A. Mudd.

Dr. Mudd's connection with the conspiracy was of such a character as to justify even him to have been. His fate, however, is sealed, and is regarded as one of the master spirit of the plot. His imprisonment here was under the charge of Medical Director Wood, and his course in putting good the escape of Booth and Harold is highly spoken of by those who had charge of him. It is understood that Mudd pressed Booth's broken leg, and that the latter would not allow his case even then to be disturbed. The limb is now in the possession of Surgeon Otis, of the Army Medical Museum. He has been sentenced to imprisonment for life at hard labor, and will be taken to the Dry Tortugas in a few days, also to be kept locked up closely, and at his meals will be allowed but one dish, with bread, water, plain meat, rice, hominy and tea of the poorest quality.

Last Days of Payne.

Payne, on Tuesday, in order that assigned the duty of killing Secretary Seward, was visited to accomplish the task allotted to him has been sentenced to imprisonment for life at hard labor. He was taken to the Dry Tortugas on Saturday Secretary Seward, on the night of April 14, without provocation or apparent cause, stabbed the aged statesman with a bowie knife. He is described as being a man of powerful physique, and his face is of a strongly marked cast, his forehead is low and his hair short and grizzly, and weighing about one hundred and thirty pounds.

Sketch of Edward Spangler.

Edward Spangler, who was also sentenced to the Dry Tortugas for six years, is a native of Baltimore, and is about fifty years of age. He is a carpenter by trade, and has been employed at the Ford Theatre for a number of years. He is described as being a man of rough exterior, and has the appearance of a laborer. He is married, and has a family residing in Baltimore.

NEWS FROM THE RIO GRANDE, &c., &c., &c.

The new steamship Manhattan, Captain Turner, reached this port yesterday, from Vera Cruz, via the Sisal, Havana and Key West.

The only important news from Mexico is that the Emperor vacillated having a decree about the end of June or first of July, making Matias, Romero and Corwin up to the French, as security for the war fine of Puebla. Maximilian was to receive $1,000,000 per month for having occupied that place as a license.

In the absence of Mr. Austin, the purser of the Manhattan, we are indebted for the accompanying list of arrivals and departures, and for the following correspondence relative to the matter of interest regarding Mexican affairs.

OUR VERA CRUZ CORRESPONDENCE.

VERA CRUZ, June 27, 1865.

The American and Mexican steamer Manhattan—the pioneer vessel of a new line to be established at once between New York, Havana and the principal Mexican ports—arrived here this morning, and will remain in port for a few days, when she will proceed to Sisal, and thence to Havana early on the morning of the 4th, making her the first vessel to run the route in a little over five days. According to the regulations of the company, hereafter the steamers will leave here on the 4th and 19th of every month, alternately, however, any early occasion twelve hours notice will be given of the departure.

The Manhattan left yesterday at 4 P. M. Havana, making the run in the same port in the short space of three days. The Manhattan is commanded by Captain Manuel Turner, one of the most skilful seamen and pilots and ground sailors in the line of steamers now plying between us and Havana. The company announces that all the steamers of the line will be commanded by men of equally known reputation for skill and courtesy.

The Manhattan is a splendid vessel, built in the Clyde Ironsides, for many years engaged in the Glasgow and Liverpool trade, and recently purchased by the present company. Her model is a perfect one for speed, and her accommodations for passengers are unsurpassed by any steamer in the trade.

The former is between Vera Cruz and Havana, and the latter between Havana and Key West.

The Manhattan will leave Havana on the 4th of July, and will be followed by the new steamer Roanoke, of nearly 2,000 tons burden, which will leave New York on the 15th inst., and will be followed by the new steamer Virginia, of 2,000 tons burden, which will leave New York on the 1st of August, and so on every fortnight.
